Having a last look at the last day - well not exactly the last day but you know what I mean - is really hard because just behind me I have a disc jockey table blasting its funky grooves in to the room and DJ Poiesz is going like crazy but I don't blame him cause he is like doing really well. I'm happy I weren't in charge anymore of getting someone to DJ tonight, this is way better than something I could have come up with. But I don't need to glaze the teacher too much, so here it will stop. I don't want to be that guy, you know?

But back to the point because I was planning to write about the GA right now. And in my experience in was over way to quick, well that's just the feeling afterwards, thinking like how this is it, tomorrow everybody will be on his way. But this definitely wasn't wat I was thinking during the debates. And I know for sure that a lot of other people were dying because I got texts like "I also think this is boring" from a lot, even teachers.

The group chats were really helping me get through that morning. And afternoon. And I suppose making photos of sleeping people that was also fun. But I did have a different experience than the delegates, I wasn't allowed to make points and wasn't stressing behind the stand when really a lot of people were attacking. And while it might be very different I really enjoyed it to take pictures and write down my mind.

It was a bit hard not to debate but I could think along and still grant someone else my thoughts on resolution, what people said and about some other things. I also really hope everybody enjoyed what we were doing and didn't cringe a lot on us sneaking up for some pictures - something that was new but also something I really enjoyed. I don't think I'll make the story much longer because when you're reading this it will be tomorrow morning and it must have been a long night - I'll make sure of that - and you should get you're sleep, so without further ado goodnight.

Our Experience

By Lotik Tilanus

It's officially over. The debating, the playing werewolves, the joking around, the writing of resolutions that probably crash entire markets, the completely ignoring the subject of climate, the taking away of the Trias Politica, the giving away of free vacations to Europe, the not changing anything at all or just the creations of bad resolutions overall. It was fun, exciting and thrilling, but sometimes it could also be nerve wrecking or just extremely irritating. Overall it was an amazing journey, and I think we will mis all of these things, even the co-chairs doing nothing, the praesidia only shitting on your resolution and the long boring debates, we will miss it all.
